Aditi Deshmukh

Aditi has been learning music from Smt. Jamuna Murali for the past 4 years. Along with Hindustani music, she has been learning western classical music for the past 13 years, specifically for piano, violin and viola. During this time she has accumulated numerous awards including a superior rating for piano performance for the national Guild association and 1st -3rd place medals for the TMTA Student Affiliate Theory Examination for 6 consecutive years.

Just before her senior year, Aditi decided to switch from playing the violin to the viola. Within this short period of time, however, she succeeded in earning a spot in the Regional Symphony Orchestra along with a spot in the Houston Youth Symphony. She also qualified to be a state level soloist on the Viola.

Although she gained acceptance into the Texas A&M School of Music as a piano performance major, she will be attending the University of Texas at San Antonio, majoring in Biology and minoring in music.

Guru Smt. Jamuna Murali

Jamuna Murali is an accomplished artist of Hindustani classical music. Her guru is Ubhaya Gana Vidhushi, Shyamala Bhave of Bangalore. Jamuna Auntie teaches bhajan at Chinmaya Mission to the Balvihar Children. She also teaches music to students young and old, the proceeds of which she donates to Chinmaya Mission.

Jamuna Auntie has composed many bhajans and slokas and has given music for many of the Missions spiritual plays. She has many classical and bhajan CD's to her credit. She has sung and assisted in the composition of the musical chanting of Bhagavad Gita for the CD-ROM released by Chinmaya Mission Houston. Jamuna Auntie is the recipient of an award by the Aryabhata Cultural Organization of Bangalore recognizing her contribution to Indian Music abroad.
